PREFACE.

The publication of this Catalogue will materially enhance the value of the Hocken Library, and render its treasures more readily accessible to students. It has been prepared by Mr W. H. Trimble, whose keen interest in the early history of New Zealand and exact appreciation of the value of the Library have well qualified him for his post as librarian to the Hocken Library.

Probably many years will elapse before the general community comes to realise how unique and priceless are many of the items which go to make up the Hocken Collection. To be sure, every library has its own peculiar treasures, and while there is more than one similar library in Australasia of greater range and completeness, yet in the Hocken Library there are manuscripts and journals of early missionaries, navigators, and public men not to be found elsewhere, which will prove a rich mine of wealth to future historians and biographers.

Moreover, it is possible that the publication of this Catalogue will serve another purpose. There are gaps in the Hocken Library which it may not yet be too late to fill up. Nothing surprises a collector more than the strange and improbable places in which he comes on rare pamphlets or early publications waiting to be garnered up. In Otago the fact that such material is still obtainable is shown by the large amount of historical material that has come into the Early Settlers' Hall without much search or effort. Indeed, in the case of the Hocken Library itself there have come to it since its opening quite a number of valuable brochures from unexpected sources. It is hoped that this process will continue. If it does continue, the Hocken Collection will become more and more valuable, and year by year reflect increasing honour on the name of Thomas Morland Hocken.

Mr George Fenwick has written an interesting memoir of the life of Dr Hocken by way of preface to a collection of papers by Dr Hocken, which is now in course of being printed by the Government.

WM. DOWNIE STEWART.
